

The Fourth Annual

Law School for JOURNALISTS

September 12, 2009 • 8:30 am - 1:45 pm
The University of Memphis School of Law

Join journalists & lawyers at the 4th Annual Law School for Journalists & explore how the new technology, from websites to blogs to Twitter, is changing the way journalism is practiced, & how the law & legal system are struggling to adapt. Panels of expert media lawyers & experienced reporters & bloggers will discuss how traditional access, open records, & open meetings law are adapting—or not adapting—to the new media environment. Brooke Gladstone, the co-host of NPR's On the Media, will moderate a discussion of this year's highly public controversy arising from The Commercial Appeal's web publication of the public-records database of the identities of concealed-weapon carry permit holders, with Editor Chris Peck & State Senator & Majority Leader Mark Norris of Collierville.

4.5 GENERAL CLE CREDIT HOURS—LOOK FOR MORE DETAILS COMING SOON!

SPONSORED BY The U.S. District Court for the Western District of Tennessee, the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, the University of Memphis Law Alumni Chapter, the Journalism Department of the College of Communication and Fine Arts at the University of Memphis, the Memphis Bar Association and the Memphis Mid-South Chapter of the Federal Bar Association.